

John McCain

Senior Vice President, HP Services

Hewlett-Packard Company

John W. McCain leads HP Services, a $15 billion-plus business segment of the Technology Solutions Group at HP. HP Services provides industry-leading knowledge and technologies to customers around the world and delivers comprehensive solutions across the entire IT lifecycle.

HP Services comprises four business units: Consulting and Integration, Technology Services, Managed Services, and Imaging and Printing Group Services. Global Delivery, a business unit that also reports to McCain, ensures that HP Services' resources and capabilities are deployed effectively and consistently.

Prior to this role, McCain led the Consulting and Integration business for HP. A 20-year veteran of the services industry, he has held a number of key executive positions and has led startup companies, turnarounds and multi-billion dollar businesses.

Before joining HP, McCain was chief executive officer of a privately held offshore business process outsourcing solutions provider. Prior to that, McCain was chief executive officer of North America for Capgemini, where he restructured a $1 billion-plus consulting, technology and outsourcing business.

Previous to Capgemini, McCain spent 16 years at Electronic Data Systems where, in his last position as a corporate officer and president of e.Solutions, he led a global team of 6,500 professionals operating in 25 countries and grew year-over-year revenue at an average of 40 percent.

McCain holds a bachelor of science degree in management and administration from Indiana University, Bloomington and has completed postgraduate studies at the Wharton School of Business.
