

Tim Evans

Worldwide Director, Banking and Payments, Financial Services Industries

Hewlett-Packard Company

Tim Evans is the worldwide director of Banking & Payments in the Financial Services Industries unit at HP. In this role, he is responsible for strategy and leadership for the Global Banking and Payments sector, including client relationships and engagements, partners and strategic alliances, solutions, investments and marketing.

Evans has 16 years of experience in financial services and is leading the following key initiatives to address customer's needs: Branch Transformation, HP Open Bank framework, Business intelligence, Core Banking and Business Technology Optimization.

Previously, Evans was responsible for HP's leadership for the Global Payments sector for both consumer and wholesale payments. Prior to the Compaq merger, Evans was the general manager of the Financial Services business unit, responsible for strategy and leadership for the Global Financial Services sector, including solutions creation and deployment, partners and alliances, industry and marketing programs and a close alignment with Industry Sales & Services.

In 1999, Evans took up a new director of business development position within the Financial Services business unit. From 1990 - 1998, he was the European Financial Services sales and marketing manager for Europe, Middle-East and Africa, responsible for all of HP's financial services business, including driving the business from the newly acquired Verifone payments business. From 1980 - 1990, he held a number of senior positions in Boeblingen, Germany with HP's products division, including European Systems marketing manager and European Product marketing manager.

Evans has been with HP for 29 years, starting his career in the UK Customer Services Organization. He is currently based in Cupertino, Calif.

Hewlett-Packard Company
3000 Hanover Street
Palo Alto, CA 94304
www.hp.com