

Imran Khan
Vice President, Network Consulting, Technology Services
Enterprise Business

HEWLETT-PACKARD COMPANY

Imran Khan manages HP's Network Consulting portfolio. He is responsible for developing the industry's leading networking consulting business, including a strategy and operating plan that supports the HP Networking product set, builds and enhances close relationships with clients, and creates innovative technical solutions and services for HP's clients' most pressing networking challenges.

Khan, who was a leader and key collaborator on the 3Com integration team, was most recently vice president of 3Com Global Services, responsible for all aspects of 3Com customer service and support strategy and execution, as well as global education and training.

Khan was recently responsible for the overhaul of 3Com's service operations, readying the organization to support 3Com's data center and large enterprise products. As a result, 3Com's consulting practice was significantly strengthened, and his team was responsible for networking deployments at marquee accounts around the world. Previous to his tenure at 3Com, Khan held a variety of service and business operations positions at Mercedes Benz and in the British Parliament.

Khan is a qualified accountant, and holds a Bachelor of Arts in Finance and Business Management.