

Andrzej Kawalec

Chief Technologist, Enterprise Security Services
Hewlett-Packard Company

---

Andrzej Kawalec is chief technology officer of Enterprise Security Services at HP. He is responsible for enterprise security strategy, propositions and engagement activities with the global enterprises and governments for which HP provides security outsourcing and advice. Kawalec also leads research and innovation for Enterprise Security Services, with a focus on cloud, consumerization, cybersecurity and the business risks surrounding information security systems, policies, users and processes.

Prior to HP, Kawalec served as director of strategy and innovation at Vistorm. He has 15 years of experience working with some of the world's largest IT companies, including Siemens, Compaq and Digital.

Kawalec has degrees in international business and German from Ottawa and Bradford Universities.

