

Executive Biography

Tom Joyce

Senior Vice President and General Manager, Converged Systems,
Enterprise Group
Hewlett-Packard Company

Tom Joyce is senior vice president and general manager of the Converged Systems global business unit within the HP Enterprise Group. The newly formed business unit is chartered with driving growth and increasing market share for HP Converged Infrastructure and Management, Appliance Systems and Cloud solutions.

Prior to this role, Joyce was vice president of Marketing, Strategy, Operations and Storage Networking for HP Storage. In this role, he was responsible for product strategy and marketing for the HP Storage portfolio. He also managed Storage Networking engineering.

Joyce brings more than 25 years of experience in marketing, product management, business development, business operations and acquisitions. Prior to joining HP, Tom was president and chief executive officer of Akorri, a start-up software company specializing in virtualization and storage management. In addition, he has held several executive leadership positions at EMC Corporation.

Joyce holds an MBA from Bentley College located in Waltham, Mass., and a Bachelor of Arts from Middlebury College located in Middlebury, Vt.